Chief, council in policy flap

Disagree over cop car buy

By JUDY POLUMBAUM

ALBANY — Angered by implications that he overstepped his authority in ordering a new patrol car to replace one totaled in an accident, Police Chief James Simmons told the City Council Monday he had followed past policy and had done nothing wrong.

Simmons took issue with Administrative Officer William Haden's description of the $10,000 purchase as "unbudgeted," saying, "The key word here is replacement."

He also objected to the council's decision last week to borrow the money for the new vehicle from a special Police Department electronic equipment fund, saying the city's "self-insurance" program ought to cover the expenditure. Simmons was on vacation when that decision was made.

The police chief asked the council to rescind last week's action and take the money from insurance funds instead, but failed to sway a majority of the board.

The council had voted to dip into the electronics fund because the city is trying to build up its insurance reserves. Council members planned to reimburse the special fund in the next fiscal year by buying only two new patrol cars instead of the three that ordinarily would have been budgeted

Students choose nearby schools

By BARBARA ERICKSON

MOST of the 792 Richmond Unified elementary students displaced by the closing of five schools have chosen to attend the nearest site next fall, district enrollment figures show.

Although a handful of students at each of the five closed schools — Balboa, Serra, El Monte, Kerry

Hills, and Rancho — picked new schools at some distance away, the largest number followed the school board's request to sign up at neighboring sites.

And students in the district's four basic schools opening next fall also remained close to home. Enrollment figures show the majority of students were attending the same site this year and only a few transferred from outside.

Room is still open at the basic schools, which reported the following enrollment at the end of April: Ford 304, Mira Vista 418, Sheldon 197, and Stewart 246, with an nearly equal distribution between all grade levels. Each school has a capacity of 446.

The vote to close schools, prompted by declining enrollment and financial problems, displaced 792 students. To make the transition easier, the board agreed to let parents in those schools choose any site in the district for their children next year if they registered in April.

During the enrollment period, Tara Hills drew the largest number of new students — 143 from neighboring Kerry Hills and two from Rancho. Kerry Hills will also send 30 to Shannon next year.

At Mira Vista, which becomes a basic school next fall, 66 students registered from the five closed schools, 26 from El Monte and 33 from Serra, both neighbors, and the remainder from Balboa and Rancho.

Madera took in 43 new students,

Crash kills El Cerrito's Angela Tam

EL CERRITO — An 18-year-old former Kennedy High School cheerleader and pom-pom girl from El Cerrito was killed in a motorcycle crash in which the driver, a young man also from El Cerrito, was seriously injured.

The victim was Angela Tam, a freshman at UCLA, who was a passenger on the motorcycle driven by Bruce Hayes, 18, a Chico State student who was visiting her.

Tam's parents, Arthur and Patricia Tam of El Cerrito, learned that the motorcycle apparently was struck

A Big Brother's story: self-esteem, respect

By ARLENE EAGAN

ALBANY — Brothers aren't always related: a local organization introduced two strangers to each other four years ago, and they've been "brothers" ever since.

Albany resident Stacy Marks, 24, met his "little brother" Steve Fohl, 14, through Big Brothers of the East Bay, Inc. They get together frequently, sometimes as often as three times a week. Marks remembers the exact night they met, Oct. 17, 1978.

"After the interviews (with Big Brothers of the East Bay) you get a run-down and a dossier," Marks said. "If you agree to meet, a date is set up. A Big Brothers representative is there as a liaison."

Marks said he went to about four interviews before he became a Big Brother.

"It's strict," he said. "They have to decide whether or not you're Big Brother material. You have to be a person who can cope and who's willing to give up some time. The rest comes later."

Marks and Fohl agree they have had a lot of fun being "brothers" and Fohl said that "there's never

Job loss increases risk of suicide

By BARBARA ERICKSON

CONTRA Costa County's rising unemployment rate in 1982 was linked to an increase in suicides, according to statistics released by the county Crisis and Suicide Intervention Service.

In 1981, the report said, over half of those who committed suicide were employed. In 1982 more than half were unemployed.

The percentage of unemployed suicides jumped from 47 to 52 percent in that time while the county unemployment rate went from 5.9 to 8 percent.

The overall suicide rate in the county also went up from 11.1 to 13.3 per 100,000 persons, but the rate has been even higher in earlier years.

There were 90 suicides in 1982, 70 by men and 20 by women. Another six deaths were "undetermined accident-suicides."

Violet Smith, executive director, said the suicide rate "does seem to be linked to the economic situation." Unemployment has become a more common factor in suicides, she said, with a "very high proportion" of the county cases last year showing some link to economic problems.

"On the line," she said, crisis intervention counselors reported an increase in the number of callers out of work.

To help alleviate the stress of unemployment, she said, the service has started a new 24-hour support line for unemployed workers. Anyone in this situation may call 827-2112 for help.

The event is sponsored by the Kensington Community Council. Proceeds will help support the KCC recreation program and the council's monthly newspaper, the Kensington Outlook.

John Lipscomb is chairman of the event which has been organized annually as a community service by the Kensington Community Council.

Individuals and organizations will be selling their wares: a special section is reserved for children and teenagers. A crowd of local residents traditionally turns out to enjoy socializing with neighbors. Ethnic foods as well as hot dogs, doughnuts, coffee, tea, and soft drinks will also be sold.

Requests for any remaining spaces will be accepted beginning May 16. Mail requests and checks to KCC Flea Market, 59 Arlington Ave., Kensington 94707. These requests will be confirmed by phone.

Kensington residents may rent spaces inside the Youth Hut, including half of a long table, for $7 each. Double inside spaces may be rented. Outside spaces (about 80 sq. ft., without a table) also rent for $7. Youth spaces (high school age and younger) in the amphitheater behind the Youth Hut are $3. Fees are doubled for non-Kensington residents.

Mayor Siri opposes toxic waste dump

By CATHERINE SCHUTZ

NORTH Richmond residents are prepared to fight the opening of a "household" hazardous waste storage facility on Hensley Street and blame the city and the state for not informing residents about the project.

About 20 North Richmond residents, and other opponents including El Cerrito Mayor Jean Siri, attended a public hearing in Berkeley Thursday conducted by the state health department's Hazardous Waste Management Branch on the application by the J.J. Magana Corp. to open a toxic waste facility at 1125 Hensley.

The plant is intended to store and dispose of toxic substances such as garden pesticides, oil cans, and such standard household products as paint thinner and drain and oven cleaners. It would also accept small quantities of hazardous waste products from local industries.

"We believe it will present problems for the community," said Laura Hunter, of the North Richmond Homeowners and Concerned Citizens Council. "We are already surrounded by plants and industry that emit pollutants."

"It seems like everybody was involved except the community," she said. "We want to be recognized whenever anything is proposed for hazardous waste or toxic substances."

The hearing was conducted by Charles White, regional administrator of the branch, who said the decision on the permit would be made after the public comment period ends May 23. He said after the hearing that he expected to issue the permit for the facility, and that the state is seeking information now on ways the permit conditions could be made stronger, or the facility safer.

White said the only reason a permit would not be issued was if the hazardous waste agency felt the conditions it would impose "would not be sufficient to adequately protect the public's health and safety, and the environment."

Speaking on behalf of the project was Bill Wahbeh, president of Bay Area Environmental, the company Magana will establish to run the new facility.

Wahbeh said the plant is intended to safely store and dispose of household toxics that now end up in the garbage dump or the sewer.

He said the company plans to ship the toxic products, sealed in drums, by truck to a disposal site near Fresno or possibly by rail to Idaho. He said the trucks would use Castro Street and Highway 17 and would not go through residential areas.

Safety precautions and other controls the state hazardous waste office will require at the site were outlined by Charlene F. Williams, waste management specialist.

Among these are that the facility will not be allowed to handle large quantities of toxic waste, waste containing PCBs, or more than five gallons of any product that reacts with water. All waste the company receives must be packed in containers the day it arrives.

The speakers opposing the facility, however, questioned whether the state would be able to effectively enforce the controls.

They also challenged the notion that homeowners would drive to North Richmond to dispose of an empty pesticide can.

"How are you going to entice the small householder to bring his little bottle of waste in," said Edgar Monk, a Florida Avenue resident. "Maybe the small business (would use the facility) but not the homeowner. I'm concerned about the viability of the project."

He also questioned the notion that trucks hauling the waste away would not go through residential areas since many homes are built along Highway 17 — Hoffman Boulevard.

El Cerrito Mayor Jean Siri, a long-time environmental activist, said it took the city of El Cerrito years to educate its citizens to use that city's E.C.Ology recycling plant.

Speaking for the West Contra Costa Conservation League, Siri said "We do not believe householders will take their waste there."

She said it was "completely ludicrous" to think "householders will haul their lube oil cans to North Richmond when people don't want to go there."

Although the state permit would prohibit storage of explosives at the site, Lillie Mae Jones of the Richmond Neighborhood Coordinating Council asked "If you don't have staff to monitor (the plant), how do you know?"

The project is supported by Richmond Supervisor Tom Powers, who sent a letter to the hearing that stated the proposed facility "will fit well with Contra Costa County's efforts to contain waste."

After the meeting, Hunter said she did not know what the residents would do next.

"But we're going to do something," she said. "The city of Richmond is our main target. They didn't do a very good job of notifying the community."

The property is located in the Richmond Redevelopment Agency's Hensley Industrial Park. The Magana company bought the 38,180 square foot parcel, which is zoned for heavy industry use, December, 1982, for $1 per square foot.

The public hearing on the land sale was conducted in December, 1981.

Agency real estate chief Tom Jones said at the hearing the toxic waste facility would be permitted in the Hensley project as long as it conformed to the provisions of the Hensley urban renewal plan.

"We always have fun, even if we just stay home and watch TV and order pizza," he said. "Sometimes we play football or video. We go to Chuck E. Cheese and get video madness. Or sometimes we go to Stacy's friends. That's always a blast!"

Fohl said he and Marks won a Big Brothers' raffle and their prize, a trip to Disneyland, "was a kick."

Marks planned to participate in the Bowl-A-Thon sponsored by Big Brothers and Big Sisters at Albany Bowl. Sponsors will pledge amounts to Big Brothers and Big Sisters. On April 30, he will get sponsors for himself and bowl for Big Brothers.

Marks, who lives with his wife Lisa and a huge, black dog named Kahn, works in the distribution center at Computerland in Hayward.

Marks was one of the youngest Big Brothers in the East Bay. He had just finished high school when he joined Big Brothers because he decided he "should do something for somebody somewhere."

He is an only child, and said that being a Big Brother "is like helping and having fun with a part of your own family. You set an example and help him if he needs help."

Fohl lives with his sister and mother in the East Bay. He is an eighth grader at San Lorenzo High and his favorite subjects are math, woodworking and Spanish.

He says he has lots of friends around home, but Marks is "something better than a friend."

"I can tell him anything," Fohl said. "He's something like a dad."

"It isn't just the child that's going to get something out of it," Marks said. "I gained a lot of self-esteem and respect for myself, and am very proud of what I do."

Big Brothers opened an East Bay office in Oakland in 1968 as an extension of the San Francisco office, then incorporated as an independent branch in 1977. It is part of the national organization, Big Brothers-Big Sisters of America.

Applicants for Big Brothers must be at least 21 years old, and Little Brothers must be from 7 to 17 years old and come from an environment where there is no father in the home.

Chief, council disagree on policy

Simmons pointed out that the self-insurance fund can be used to cover damages to city equipment, and has been in the past.

He gave the example of a purchase a year ago to replace a patrol car damaged by a drunk driver on the highway, saying the city's insurance fund had paid for a new replacement.

In this case, he said, the purchase order had been drawn up before the council formally approved the expenditure.

Haden said that situation differed from the present one because it involved a "front-line" patrol unit which needed to be replaced immediately, whereas the car in this case was an unmarked "spare."

Haden also said last year's purchase had been discussed thoroughly with the staff level, but in this case the purchase order had been issued without that kind of consultation.

The city's insurance reserves now amount to $169,000, and the goal is to build them to $200,000. "We're trying to protect those funds," Haden said.

A separate insurance operating budget stands at $9,000, not enough to cover the entire purchase of the new car.

Mayor Ruth Ganong said that in light of several "huge" pending lawsuits against the city, she felt the prudent thing to do was to "draw the money from the electronics fund."

Council member Robert Nichols agreed, saying he had proposed that last week to ensure that the expenditure would not fall by the wayside during budget-making time later this year. If the money were taken from insurance funds, the council might be tempted to use the savings from the third patrol car for the badly-squeezed general fund rather than returning that money to the insurance account; but coming from the electronics fund, it would have to be returned.

Nichols added that he was perturbed by the fact that the Police Department had ordered the car without prior council approval, suggesting that any precedents probably had been unwise as well.

Council member William Johns took up Simmons' defense, however, agreeing that insurance funds ought to provide for replacement of damaged city property and that the council had departed from past practice concerning the use of those funds.

Johns suggested dipping into the insurance operating fund for money equivalent to the value of the damaged car — about $5,000 — and borrowing only the balance required for the new car from the electronics fund.

Council member Henry Kruse seconded the motion "in the hopes that it will make people a little bit less unhappy," but Ganong and Nichols both rejected the idea when it came to a vote and it died for lack of a majority. (Council member Edward McManus, who is on a cycling vacation in Europe, was absent from the meeting.)

The car that is being replaced was in an accident April 23 on Cleveland Avenue, with Sgt. Ronald Patton behind the wheel. The patrol car collided with a station wagon driven by a Richmond man, who has brought a $1,795 damage claim against the city as a result.

In other action Monday, the City Council:

- Accepted a petition signed by 150 people with homes near Golden Gate Fields proposing a preferential parking system for local residents. One of the organizers of the petition drive, Bruce Barrows, said the racing season brought an influx of cars that made it impossible for residents to park outside their homes. Several residents of Pierce Street added that the problem was year-round for them because of commuters who left their cars on the street rather than in the Breuner's parking lot in order to save 25 cents of the AC Transit fare into San Francisco.

Only one person, Paul David, spoke in opposition to a preferential parking setup, saying local residents have no special right to park on the street either and ought to stick to their driveways and garages. Other people responded that many of the garages and driveways are too small to accommodate today's cars.

The council referred the matter to the Traffic and Safety Commission and tentatively set a public hearing date on the issue for May 23.

- Approved a reorganization plan for the Park and Recreation Department abolishing the position of department secretary, which has been vacant since last year, and incorporating most of the secretary's duties into the job description of the department's program coordinator with a corresponding increase in salary. In addition, the plan calls for hiring a part-time clerical worker three days a week.

Administrative Officer Haden recommended the reorganization in anticipation of an "onslaught" of work, primarily registration of summer programs, when an extra person would have to be hired in any case. The reorganization is designed to save the city some $3,000 a year. "It's the same number of bodies; we're just paying them differently," Haden said.

- Accepted a recommendation from Public Works Director Robert Guletz to use $77,900 in federal Housing and Community Development funds to build a supplementary sewer on Dartmouth Street in conjunction with already-funded street reconstruction planned for the coming fiscal year. Another $5,000 in HCD money will go into the city's housing rehabilitation loan program.

We know the answer before you write it in. The interest you can earn in a Commercial Credit Money Market Account is about double your passbook rate at a bank or savings and loan.

And, if that's good news, consider this: We guarantee each month you'll get 1% more than the rate paid on 13 week U.S. Treasury Bills, or our minimum rate, whichever is greater. Currently, our minimum rate is 10% annual interest.

To open your Commercial Credit Money Market Account, you only need $2,000. And you may add or withdraw any amount at any time. If your balance dips below our $2,000 minimum, you still earn 8½% annual interest. And the interest is compounded daily for a higher yield.

Get your account started right now by filling out the attached coupon or calling our office. Available to California residents only.

*Based on daily compounding of current rate for a year. Rate subject to change monthly.

Suicide rate up for jobless

Since the new line started on April 18, she said, the service has received 132 calls. Advisors give emotional support and advice on where to go for help with finances, job opportunities or further counseling.

Nationwide, Smith said, each percentage increase in the unemployment rate has been accompanied by increases in suicide, depression, alcoholism and other stress-related conditions.

Contra Costa County statistics paralleled those throughout the country in the predominance of males over females. Men aged 20 to 29 were most at risk, and men in all age ranges (except for those over 80) outnumbered women.

In 1982 two-thirds of the suicides were unmarried, up from the previous year when 52 percent were single, widowed or divorced. Whites showed the highest rate in the county. Out of 90 cases, 85 were white, four black and one Hispanic.

From 1981 to 1982 the county records show an increase in violent methods chosen by women compared to past years. Women, however, still tend to choose drug overdose more frequently while men tend to choose gunshots or hanging.

As in former years, the figures show that most suicides in Contra Costa County took place in the victim's home or yard, 64 out of 90, and for this reason, the report said, family members or close friends most often discovered the body.

Depression, medical illness, unemployment and marital problems were the chief factors contributing to suicide, and a significant number of the victims had been drinking or taking drugs at the time of death.

According to the report, 27 had blood alcohol levels above the legal limit for intoxication and "many others" had been drinking at the time. Another 16 had been using drugs, not counting those who over-

The report underscored the need to take suicide threats seriously. Out of the 90 suicides in the county, 22 had made previous attempts and 30 made verbal threats, 23 left notes and seven acted in ways that showed their intent — such as making a will or buying a gun.

Smith said the service received 14,521 calls in 1982, an average of 40 a day. Some 8,000 individuals phoned in, she said, and of these about 10 percent were actually suicidal. Most of them were depressed.

The 24-hour crisis and suicide intervention hotline is 939-3232.

Pot luck with Olga Bier

Classic flavors of Greece

The cooking of Greece is clearly related to that of Italy, based on olive oil, many and varied cheeses, pasta, and the use of fragrant herbs for seasoning. We think of Greece as the cornerstone of Western civilization, but throughout all of Greek culture and cuisine there is an unmistakable flavor of the East. Many Greek dishes are interchangeable with those of Turkey. The honeyed baklava, for instance, and the rice pilafs and kebabs are staples of the diet of both peoples.

The winning flavor

I don't think one would be able to prepare a Greek dish without lemons or cloves or cinnamon. These particular flavors seem to be present in so many of the native dishes. And mint is a very common garnish. It was without a doubt the elusive scent of cloves which gave the winning dish in the recent Beef Cook-off its distinctive edge over the other entries. Sponsored by the California Cowbells, the contest featured cooks from all the Bay Area counties, who prepared their entries for a panel of judges and vied for the honor of competing in the state cook-off.

Prepared and served by a young San Franciscan in her first experience as a contestant in a culinary contest, Carol Pfeiffer's Greek Beef Stew was an immediate hit with the judges for many reasons. It's absolutely uncomplicated to make; its simplicity is as classic as the country which inspired it, and its flavor is superb. She served it in a plain white casserole which smartly contrasted with the rich brown gravy. A few fluted mushroom caps were the only concession to adornment.

If you would like to duplicate this delicious dish which Carol will take on to the state finals in June, here's her recipe. Serve it with fluffy mashed potatoes as she did, or make some pilaf with rice and onions. The Greeks are also very fond of a rice-shaped pasta called Orzo. You could substitute any other small pasta if you're too far from a deli which sells it.

Greek Beef Stew

(for 6)

- Flour, seasoned with salt, pepper and thyme
- 3 lbs. beef chuck, cut into 2-inch cubes
- 2 c. good red wine (she used zinfandel)
- 2 c. beef broth (canned or bouillon would work)
- 6 oz. tomato paste
- 2 T. light brown sugar
- 5 whole cloves
- 1 c. ground cumin
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 T. minced garlic
- 1/4 t. ground allspice
- Parboiled pearl onions
- Carrots, cut into bite-size pieces
- Mushrooms

Toss beef in the seasoned flour. Shake off excess and sear. Melt butter in a heavy pot (Dutch oven or electric skillet will work) and brown the beef cubes lightly on all sides.

Note of thanks

Wonderful volunteers

In recognition of National Volunteer Week, April 17-23, the Kensington After School Enrichment Program would like to thank publicly the following people who have been generous in spreading educational opportunities to our youth.

you: Chris Van Loben Sels, David Barraza, Neil Gross, Lynne Donaghey, Heather Peters, Kibo Bell and Erin Kock.

Marcia Mattson Robben
Director

To our student volunteers another big thank

Put the whole cloves, bay leaves, and even the garlic (slightly crushed if you don't want to mince) into a piece of cheese cloth tied with a string so that they can be removed at the end of cooking. Add the remaining ingredients (except mushrooms) and simmer 1½ to 2 hours until meat is tender and sauce is thickened. If necessary, remove the cover during last half hour of cooking to further reduce sauce. Mushrooms may be added just before serving, in the last few minutes of cooking.

As for an accompaniment, if you find the spindle-shaped Orzo, serve it this way to complete your Greek style meal:

Pasta Al Greco

- 1 lb. Orzo
- Boiling water
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 c. milk
- 4 T. melted butter
- 1/2 lb. Feta cheese, crumbled
- 1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste diluted with 6 oz. water

Boil pasta for 6 to 8 minutes in the rapidly boiling water. Drain and set aside. Beat eggs and milk lightly in a large bowl. Add melted butter and blend. Add crumbled cheese, tomato paste and Orzo. Mix well, place in a greased baking dish, and bake at 300 degrees for 25 minutes or until top becomes golden brown.

The salad course and more

As for the rest of the meal, the traditional Greek salad seems in order here. This is made with any combination of greens, radishes, cucumber slices, tomato wedges, scallions, black olives and chunks of feta cheese all tossed in a vinaigrette and garnished with minced fresh mint.

Whether in Germany, Italy, Scandinavia or Greece, these goodies by any other name, are still sweet and delicious. You will recognize them from many other ethnic dishes.

Greek Thiples

- 6 eggs
- Juice of 2 lemons
- 3 c. flour
- 1 t. baking powder
- 1/2 t. salt
- 2 T. olive oil
- Powdered cinnamon
- 2 c. honey
- 1 c. water

Beat eggs until fluffy. Slowly add lemon juice while beating. Add sifted flour mixed with the baking powder and salt, and knead. Add olive oil and continue to knead until dough is stiff and well blended. Add flour if necessary.

Roll dough out on a floured board as for a pie crust and cut into strips about 3 inches by 1 inch and pinch in to center to shape like a bow tie.

Fry in vegetable oil (375 degrees) for a few minutes and drain on paper towels.

Boil honey and water for about 5 minutes. Place a layer of the thiples on a platter and pour hot syrup over them and sprinkle with cinnamon. Pyramid layers until all the thiples are covered with syrup and cinnamon. Serve hot or cold. Yumm.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

A bridge-teaching hand usually brings up some point or points on bidding. Thus with today's hand the teacher will explain that South was using a range of 21-23 points to open two no-trump and that the modern tendency is to use that range rather than 22-24.

With 13 high-card points North uses a Gerber four clubs to ask for aces. He is thinking about a possible grand slam, but with his 4-3-3 distribution he should probably have just bid six no-trump and given up any idea of seven. With a minimum combined holding of 34 points, two aces could not be missing.

South looks at 11 easy tricks. The twelfth must come in a red suit. He wins the spade in dummy and leads a club to his king. West takes his ace and plays a second spade.

Now South cashes his black winners to come down to a seven-card ending. If either defender held eight red cards, that player would have been squeezed, but no red card appears.

South plays out three rounds of hearts, and then stops to count the hand. West discarded on the third club and the third heart while East discarded on the third spade. Hence West's distribution is known to have been 5-2-4-2. South plays his ace-queen-seven of diamonds and finesses dummy's 10 with certainty of success.
